“ My sons grew up with Darrol's son. Anyway, One day I was home and someone knocked at my door. I answered it and there was a man standing there that I did not recognize. He didn't say anything but he handed me a sack of apricots and left. I thought "Now wasn't that strange". I continued to try and remember who that fellow was. Later in the day, I said something to my family, and what do you know, one of my sons said "Oh, that was Darrol Chamberlain. He thought you might like some apricots." I just smiled and told them to tell him thank you.
